THE GREAT WESTERN STEAMSHIP CO. SHIP, THE GREAT WESTERN, AT THE DOCK.

The Great Western Steamship Co. has announced that it will operate a regular service between Seattle and Tacoma, Wash., during the winter months.

The service will be operated by the company's new ship, the Great Western, which is expected to be completed in the near future. The ship is a modern steamship with a capacity of 1,000 passengers and 100 tons of cargo.

The Great Western will operate on a weekly schedule, with one round trip between Seattle and Tacoma each week. The service is expected to be very popular, especially during the winter months when travel is slow.

WATERWAY IMPROVEMENTS

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers has announced that it will improve the waterway between Seattle and Tacoma, Wash., during the winter months. The improvement will consist of deepening the channel and widening the banks.

THE GREAT WESTERN STEAMSHIP CO. SHIP, THE GREAT WESTERN, AT SEA.

The improvement will be completed by the end of the winter season. The Corps of Engineers has estimated that the cost of the improvement will be $1,000,000.

The improvement will greatly improve the waterway, making it more navigable and safer for shipping. It will also increase the capacity of the waterway, allowing for larger ships to operate.

The Corps of Engineers has also announced that it will improve the waterway between Seattle and Everett, Wash., during the winter months. The improvement will consist of deepening the channel and widening the banks.

59 & 60

By L. Robert Smith

In a city where the population is growing so rapidly, it is not surprising that the number of people who are over 60 years of age is also increasing. This is true in every part of the country, and it is especially true in the city of New York. In 1950, there were about 10 million people over 60 years of age in the United States. By 1960, this number had increased to about 15 million. This increase is due to a number of factors, including a decrease in the death rate, a decrease in the birth rate, and a decrease in the number of people who are leaving the country.

The increase in the number of people over 60 years of age is a significant problem for the country as a whole. It is a problem because it means that there are more people who are dependent on the government for support. This is especially true in the case of the elderly, who are often unable to support themselves. The government must provide for their needs, and this is a heavy burden on the taxpayer.

There are a number of ways in which the government can help to solve this problem. One way is to increase the retirement age. This would mean that people would have to work longer before they could retire. This would help to reduce the number of people who are dependent on the government for support. Another way is to increase the amount of money that is paid out in retirement benefits. This would help to ensure that people have enough money to live on when they retire.

There are also a number of things that individuals can do to help solve this problem. One thing is to save money for retirement. This can be done by contributing to a retirement fund or by investing in stocks and bonds. Another thing is to stay healthy. This can be done by eating a healthy diet, exercising regularly, and getting enough rest.

The problem of the elderly is a complex one, and it will require a number of different solutions. However, it is clear that the government has a responsibility to help solve this problem. It is also clear that individuals have a responsibility to help solve this problem. By working together, we can ensure that everyone has a good life.

By John F. Hughes

...the electrical industry is a dynamic and growing sector of the economy. It provides the power and infrastructure that are essential for modern life. From the power plants that generate electricity to the distribution networks that deliver it to homes and businesses, the electrical industry is a complex and vital part of our society. As technology advances, the demand for electrical services continues to grow, and the industry must adapt to meet these challenges. This includes investing in research and development, training a skilled workforce, and ensuring the safety and reliability of the electrical grid. The electrical industry is not just a source of power; it is a source of progress and innovation.

WORKING SAFELY FOR THE WELDER

...welding is a hazardous occupation. Welders are exposed to a variety of risks, including heat, radiation, and toxic fumes. To ensure the safety of welders, it is essential to implement strict safety protocols. This includes wearing appropriate protective gear, such as helmets and gloves, and working in well-ventilated areas. Additionally, proper training and supervision are crucial for preventing accidents. The electrical industry must prioritize the safety of its workers and take all necessary steps to minimize the risks associated with welding. This is not only a moral obligation but also a practical one, as a safe workforce is a productive one.

"VENTILATION"

...ventilation is a critical component of a safe working environment. It helps to remove dust, fumes, and other airborne contaminants, reducing the risk of respiratory and other health issues. In the context of welding, proper ventilation is especially important because of the high temperatures and the presence of toxic fumes. Employers should invest in high-quality ventilation systems and ensure that they are properly maintained and used. Regular maintenance and inspection are also essential to ensure that the ventilation system is functioning correctly. By prioritizing ventilation, employers can create a safer and healthier work environment for their employees.

SOCIALIZED SECURITY

By James P. Cannon, Jr.

There are two basic principles which underlie the present system of social insurance. One is that the individual is responsible for his own welfare, and the other is that the state has no right to interfere with the individual's freedom of choice.

These two principles are in direct conflict with each other. The first principle is based on the idea of individualism, and the second is based on the idea of state intervention. The conflict between these two principles is the central theme of the present system of social insurance.

The present system of social insurance is based on the idea of individualism. It is based on the idea that the individual is responsible for his own welfare, and that the state has no right to interfere with the individual's freedom of choice. This is the basic principle of the present system of social insurance.

PRAYER FOR GUIDANCE

Give us, Lord, a bit of wit
A bit of work, a bit of joy
Give us all in the struggle and splendor
Our daily bread and a bit of better.
Give us health, our sleep no matter
And a bit to spare for your child's sake,
Give us sense for each is but a sufferer
And a heart to feel for all who suffer.
Give us love a bit of song
And a tale, a book, to help us along,
And give us our share of heaven's love
That we may prove how good's a blessing.
Give us, Lord, a chance to be
Our kindly best, brave, wise and free
Our kindly best for ourselves and others,
Till all men have us live as brothers.

from "Random Motes" Poemata

CONSTANT SPIRIT

There's a gala time that's coming
It is Merry Christmas time,
You'll hear the carols humming
And hear the church bells chime,
With streets lined with torches
The stars all shining bright,
Mass folks are gay and jolly
Mid the noise of Silver Night,
As the bells are gladly ringing
And sounding Christmas cheer,
Glad to hear you singing
And ev'ry one praising you,
Have you been your neighbor's keeper
Have you been a friend in need,
Have you cemented friendship deeper
Have you followed well the creed?
Have you been a kindly brother
Have you been a rusty ferrug,
Have you gladly helped another
Have you been a lucky stave?
So when you round a greeting
With a Merry-Christmas wish,
Just think it's worth repeating
Every day, and all the while.
